Focused on Teens, Health and Smart Choices

Teen Sexual Activity: Is your school on the cutting edge with the most current and reliable health information?

New Jersey has newly revised CCCS for Human Relationships & Sexuality that need to be implemented, and classroom health curricula must comply with the AIDS Prevention Act. This conference will assist you in attaining both of those goals for your school and your district.

During this one-day program, physicians will address sexual health issues, with a focus on the high-risk nature of teen sexual activity. Presenters will provide educators with skills, classroom activities and techniques, and showcase curricula that address New Jersey's state mandates.

"When we assist young people in making smart sexual choices as teens, we are helping them maintain the highest level of physical and emotional health, thus giving them the best chance for a healthy future."

Dr. Joseph Clemente, NJPAG Chairman
